Umoljani is a populated place in the municipality of Trnovo, Bosnia and Herzegovina. The village is located on the mountain Bjelasnica. At the entrance to Umoljane in Dolovi, about 200 meters from the bridge, is a necropolis with 47 stećak tombstones. At a distance of about 200 m from the necropolis to the north, three old nišan tombstones were recorded, while at a distance of about 300 m, 8 nišan tombstones were recorded. The nišan tombstones at this site can be dated to the period of the second half of the 15th and the first half of the 16th century, so they belong to the earliest examples of nišan tombstones in Bosnia and Herzegovina. These buildings have been declared a national monument of Bosnia and Herzegovina as a historical area, together with the natural environment. The village of Umoljani has a number of attractive locations that leave mountain guests breathless. The area designated for walking tours abounds with fascinating scenes of natural beauty.
