At about 95th kilometer from Belgrade towards Kragujevac, on the wavy slopes of Rudnik which gently descend from its peak Svetinje to Cumic hill, in the greenery of plum orchards the village of Cumic spreads out. It is one of the biggest villages in Sumadija, only 20km northwest away from the town of Kragujevac. Over 200-year-old family tradition in producing plums, dry plums, and brandy covers 5 generations. Production takes place on over 25ha and its main product is plum. Annual production is more than 40 tons of dried plums. Production process is rounded from cultivating fresh plums to dried plums and brandy. Within the family estate, there is a cellar for brandy production, about 40 wagons in size, with wooden vessels for aging, as well as two dryers for plum drying with the total capacity of 4 000kg per hour.
